Introduction

Rahat Welfare Foundation remains steadfast in its mission to uplift underprivileged communities through a holistic approach focused on education, skill development, healthcare, and cultural engagement. Guided by compassion and driven by grassroots involvement, we continue to serve those most in need with integrity, inclusivity, and innovation.

The financial year 2022–2023 was a landmark chapter in our journey. Amidst continued social and economic challenges, we broadened the scope of our outreach programs, introduced new initiatives for youth empowerment, and deepened our engagement with marginalized groups. From distributing essentials like food rations and blankets, to nurturing young minds through tuition programs and student nutrition, every step was driven by a belief that lasting change begins with community collaboration.

Our dedicated team of volunteers, educators, donors, and community leaders made it possible to touch thousands of lives across urban slums, rural pockets, and underserved neighborhoods. Through this report, we proudly share the highlights of our work and the stories of resilience, progress, and hope that inspire us to continue.

1. Basic Computer Training Program

Understanding the importance of digital literacy in today's world, we launched Basic Computer Courses aimed at youth and women from under-resourced backgrounds. The course covered essentials like MS Office, Internet usage, email communication, and digital safety. Over 150 participants completed the program, with many now able to apply for office jobs or further studies in IT.

2. English Speaking & Communication Skills

Effective communication is key to personal and professional growth. Our English Speaking Course was designed to build confidence, fluency, and conversational ability among students and job seekers. Conducted in small batches with interactive sessions, the course benefited over 100 learners, many of whom are now better prepared for interviews, public interactions, and customer-facing roles.

3. Food Vendor Training Program

To support self-employment, especially among those without formal education, we introduced a Food Vendor Training Course. This practical program included sessions on hygiene, food preparation, packaging, customer service, and basic accounting. Participants were also guided on how to start small-scale food stalls or delivery services. More than 70 individuals graduated from this initiative, with several launching their own micro-enterprises.

Advanced Skill Exposure

This year, Rahat Welfare Foundation took a major step toward future-ready education by facilitating advanced technical training for selected youth. We identified six talented and motivated students from underprivileged backgrounds and sponsored their travel, accommodation, and full participation in a specialized training program held in Pune.

The training included two key modules:

- Robotics Hardware Fundamentals – Students were introduced to circuit building, microcontroller programming (Arduino/Raspberry Pi), and real-world robotic applications. This exposure to cutting-edge technology not only sparked interest but also gave them hands-on experience in a highly promising field.
- Mobile Repair & Servicing – A practical, income-generating skill, this course covered mobile hardware diagnostics, component replacement, and software troubleshooting. It prepared students to seek employment or start small repair businesses.

1. Rashan Distribution

This year, our Rashan Distribution initiative continued to be a lifeline for hundreds of underprivileged families. With the generous support of donors, we were able to distribute over 3,000 ration kits containing essential food items, ensuring nutritional support for families struggling with inflation and unemployment. Special drives were held during Ramadan and Eid to support the most vulnerable.

2.Rooh Afza Distribution – Spreading Sweetness in Summer

During the peak summer months, [NGO Name] organized Rooh Afza distribution camps across several urban slums and roadside labor sites. Over 5,000 cold Rooh Afza drinks were served to daily wage workers, rickshaw pullers, and passersby to provide relief from the extreme heat. This small gesture brought immense joy and hydration to many.

3. Mother's Day Celebration – Honoring the Backbone of Society

In May, we held a heartwarming Mother's Day celebration with women from marginalized communities. The event featured storytelling, gift hampers, health check-ups, and empowerment talks. Each mother was honored with a token of appreciation, reminding them that they are seen, respected, and celebrated.

4. Plantation Drive – Greening Our Future

Environmental responsibility remains a core pillar of our mission. This year's Plantation Drive saw the planting of over 1,200 saplings in schools, parks, and roadside areas in collaboration with local authorities and student volunteers. Native species were prioritized to promote biodiversity and long-term sustainability.

5. Student Food Program – Nourishing Young Minds

Recognizing the link between nutrition and academic performance, we expanded our Student Food Program to cover eight schools, providing daily mid-day meals to over 700 students. The meals were designed to be both nutritious and culturally appropriate. Regular feedback was taken from students and staff to improve quality and delivery.

6. Blanket Distribution – Warmth in Winter

As winter approached, we launched our annual Blanket Distribution drive, reaching 2,500 individuals in slum areas, railway stations, and shelter homes. Each blanket came with a care pack containing socks, caps, and hygiene items. These small packages of care meant a warmer, safer winter for many.

7. Tuition Support for Primary School Students – Building Foundations for the Future

Education lies at the heart of empowerment. This year, [NGO Name] launched and expanded its Tuition Support Program for primary school students from underserved communities. Recognizing that many children struggle to keep up academically due to a lack of home support or access to private tuition, our volunteers and part-time educators conducted evening tuition classes across 5 community centers.

More than 300 students from Classes 1 to 5 received help in subjects like Mathematics, English, and Science. We also focused on foundational literacy, reading habits, and confidence-building through creative teaching methods. Regular assessments showed significant improvement in academic performance and classroom engagement.

Special efforts were made to ensure a safe, friendly, and inclusive environment, with sessions often including storytelling, games, and snack time—making learning enjoyable and effective.

Community Awareness Event – Teaching Dropout Students

Venue: Islamic Centre | Focus: Inclusive Education Strategies

As part of our ongoing efforts to make education accessible for all, Rahat Welfare Foundation conducted a special awareness and training event at the Islamic Centre, aimed at educators, community volunteers, and local leaders. The session focused on "How to Teach Dropout Students", addressing the barriers these children face and offering practical strategies to reintegrate them into the learning process.

Topics covered included:

- Understanding reasons behind school dropouts (poverty, migration, lack of support)
- Techniques for re-engagement through informal education, bridge courses, and interest-based learning
- Creating a welcoming, non-judgmental learning environment
- Leveraging community spaces like madrasas or local centers for flexible learning
- Motivational stories from successful reintegrated students

The event was well-attended by local educators, parents, and volunteers, fostering meaningful dialogue and a collective commitment to reduce dropout rates in our community. This event also helped identify volunteers willing to assist in our tuition and bridge education programs.

Delhi trust trains, educates school dropout girls

BENGALURU, 9 MARCH

Rahat Welfare Foundation, a beacon of hope for women in New Delhi's slums, has been transforming lives since 2010. This charitable trust works to empower young girls who have dropped out of school due to poverty.

Rahat Welfare Foundation tackles a multitude of issues faced by these girls such as extreme poverty, discrimination, and even abuse that often forces them to abandon their education and take on odd jobs to support their families.

The trust provides them training in tailoring and digital marketing and ensures that at the end of the training, they are placed in regular jobs.
